Paragraph writing
English II

Lecture by:
Sadia Islam
Adjunct faculty
United International University (UIU)

Types of paragraph:

1. Descriptive paragraph
2. Narrative paragraph
3. Process paragraph

Descriptive paragraph

- A descriptive paragraph describes a person, place, object, event, or experience by using vivid sensory details so that the reader can clearly imagine it.
- Features
- Focuses on one subject.
- Uses sensory details (sight, sound, smell, taste, touch).
- Contains many adjectives and descriptive words.
- Creates a clear mental picture.
- Usually follows spatial order (left to right, top to bottom, near to far) or order of importance.
- Mostly written in the present tense (unless describing something in the past).

- The purpose of descriptive writing is to make our readers see, feel, and hear what we have seen, felt, and heard. Whether we're describing a person, a place, or a thing, our aim is to reveal a subject through vivid and carefully selected details.
- You might need to describe a small town, about life abroad or how your father looks like or about a family member.

My Classroom

- My classroom is a bright and welcoming place where I enjoy learning every day.Firstly, the walls are painted light blue and decorated with colorful charts, maps, and students' artwork. These decorations make the classroom lively and help us learn in a more enjoyable way. For example, the grammar charts and maps are useful whenever we need quick references during lessons. Secondly, large windows allow plenty of natural sunlight to enter the room. As a result, the classroom remains bright and fresh throughout the day. For instance, we rarely need artificial lights during morning classes.Finally, the desks are neatly arranged, and the room is always clean and organized. This creates a peaceful atmosphere where students can concentrate on their studies without distraction. concentrate on their studies without distraction. To conclude, my classroom provides a comfortable and inspiring environment for learning.

Sample of a descriptive paragraph :

- Topic Sentence:My classroom is a bright and welcoming place where I enjoy learning every day.Supporting Detail 1:First of all, the walls are painted light blue and decorated with colorful charts, maps, and students' artwork. These decorations make the classroom lively and help us learn in a more enjoyable way. For example, the grammar charts and maps are useful whenever we need quick references during lessons.Supporting Detail 2:Moreover, large windows allow plenty of natural sunlight to enter the room. As a result, the classroom remains bright and fresh throughout the day. For instance, we rarely need artificial lights during morning classes.Supporting Detail 3:Finally, the desks are neatly arranged, and the room is always clean and organized. This creates a peaceful atmosphere where students can concentrate on their studies without distraction.Concluding Sentence:To conclude, my classroom provides a comfortable and inspiring environment for learning.Transitional expressions: First of all, Moreover, For example, As a result, Finally, Overall.

Narrative paragraph

- A narrative paragraph tells a story or describes a sequence of events, usually based on a real or imagined experience.
- Features:

1. Tells a story
2. Has a clear beginning, middle, and ending
3. Follows chronological order
4. Includes characters, setting, and events.
5. May include dialogue and emotions.
6. Usually written in the past tense.

My first day at University

My first day at university was both exciting and challenging. First, I arrived on campus early in the morning feeling nervous because everything was new to me. However, the beautiful campus and friendly atmosphere gradually made me feel more comfortable. Next, I met several new classmates, and we introduced ourselves to one another before our teacher entered the classroom. The teacher warmly welcomed us, explained the course outline, and discussed the classroom rules and expectations. Finally, during the break, I explored different parts of the campus with my new friends and visited the library and cafeteria. By the time I returned home, I felt much more confident and excited about my university life. Overall, my first day at university was a memorable experience that I will always cherish.

My first day at University

Topic sentence: My first day at university was both exciting and challenging.Supporting detail 1: Firstly, I arrived on campus early in the morning feeling nervous because everything was new to me. However, the beautiful campus and friendly atmosphere gradually made me feel more comfortable. Supporting detail 2: Next, I met several new classmates, and we introduced ourselves to one another before our teacher entered the classroom. The teacher warmly welcomed us, explained the course outline, and discussed the classroom rules and expectations. Supporting detail 3:Finally, during the break, I explored different parts of the campus with my new friends and visited the library and cafeteria. By the time I returned home, I felt much more confident and excited about my university life.Concluding sentence : In conclusion, my first day at university was a memorable experience that I will always cherish.

Process paragraph

- A process paragraph explains how to do something or how something happens, presenting the steps in a logical sequence.
- Features

1. Explains a process step by step.
2. Follows chronological order.
3. Uses sequencing words.
4. Often includes imperative verbs (instructions) or passive voice.
5. Ensures each step is clear and complete.
6. Usually written in the present tense.

The Phases of Writing a Paragraph

- Writing a good paragraph involves several important phases that help organize ideas effectively. First, a suitable topic should be selected, and the main idea should be planned before writing begins. It is important to think about the purpose of the paragraph and gather relevant supporting ideas. Next, the first draft should be written by developing the topic sentence, supporting details, and concluding sentence in a logical order. Appropriate transitional expressions should also be used to ensure smooth connections between ideas. Finally, the paragraph should be revised and edited carefully. During this phase, grammatical errors, spelling mistakes, punctuation, and sentence organization should be checked and corrected. To sum up, By following these phases, a clear, well-organized, and effective paragraph can be produced.

Topic Sentence :Writing a good paragraph involves several important phases that help organize ideas effectively. Supporting Detail 1:First, a suitable topic should be selected, and the main idea should be planned before writing begins. It is important to think about the purpose of the paragraph and gather relevant supporting ideas. Supporting Detail 2: Next, the first draft should be written by developing the topic sentence, supporting details, and concluding sentence in a logical order. Appropriate transitional expressions should also be used to ensure smooth connections between ideas. Supporting Detail 3:Finally, the paragraph should be revised and edited carefully. During this phase, grammatical errors, spelling mistakes, punctuation, and sentence organization should be checked and corrected. Concluding Sentence :To conclude, By following these phases, a clear, well-organized, and effective paragraph can be produced.